Can you write your own birthday party invitation
using capital letters in the correct places?

Can you sort these words? If they should start with a capital letter, they need to go in the Capital Cupboard. If not, they need to go in the lowercase lunchbox.

lottie

mr roberts

dog

wizard

amir

mrs smith

Can you write some more names to go in the Capital Cupboard?

Read this text about Africa. Some of the capital letters are missing. Can you write the names of places in this text that should have a capital letter?

Africa is a continent which is bigger than america, canada and india put together. There are many countries in africa. Some of the biggest are nigeria, ethiopia and kenya. In africa, you can trek through the sahara desert, which is the largest desert in the world. You can also visit the world's longest river, the nile. The nile flows through many countries including egypt, sudan and uganda. The biggest city in africa is lagos, in nigeria.

Can you correct these children's conversations so that capital letters are used for names and the word 'I'?

adib and i are going to the park later. Can you and zak come?

i don't know because my uncle tim is staying. i have to ask suzy if it's okay.

i really like the new girl, elena. i think we should ask her to play.

Yes, i agree. i think she might like to play 'superman and spidergirl' with us.

Can you write your own conversation between two people using capital letters for names and the word 'I'?

Oh no! The teacher's plans for the week have got all mixed up! Can you unscramble the days of the week and put in the capital letters?

Can you put the days of the week back where they should be? Click them in the right order.

I spy with my little eye...

This eye is looking for all the times when a capital 'I' should be used. Can you spy where the 'I' should be in these sentences?

My friend and i go to the shops.

What shall i wear tomorrow?

What a lot of toys i have.

i don't know which way i need to go.

Zion told me i have lovely handwriting.

When i get home, i always have a snack.

i am going to go swimming tomorrow.

Can you guess how old i am?

How many 'I's can you count altogether?

These children wrote about where they went every day of their half-term holiday. But over the holiday, they have forgotten where the capital letters need to go! Can you correct their work?

On Monday
I went to
Brockwell
Park.

On Saturday
I went to
Sherwood
Forest.

On
Wednesday I went to
London Zoo.

On Thursday
I went to
Sheffield.

On Sunday I went for lunch at
Pizza Palace.

Can you write a sentence about somewhere you went on a day this week or last week? Remember the capital letters!

Can you help Detective Danny to catch Burglar Bill by cracking his secret code? First find all the letters that should be capitals, and write them in the boxes below. They will spell out Burglar Bill's secret hideout!

terry the turtle is from hull. So is edna olsen the earthworm. Tomorrow they are meeting in liverpool. They will be joined by darren the deer on monday. i won't get to see them until later, when they travel to london. I hope we will get to see lilly the leopard too.
